Kentucky Supreme Court Report in the Louisville Bar Briefs, the newspaper of the Louisville Bar Association, November 2007· Volume 07, No 11, spotlighted Michelle Eisenmenger Mapes, who digests family law decisions.

Mapes joined Diana L. Skaggs in 2003, following her graduation from the University of Louisville Brandeis School of Law. While working toward her degree, Mapes worked as editor-in-chief for the Journal of Law & Education, a law clerk in Indiana courtrooms and Kentucky and Indiana law firms, and as a research assistant at the Brandeis School of Law.

On a personal note, Mapes is the youngest of five children of parents married for 47 years and became interested in family law after watching her siblings experience the difficulties of divorce. I first met Mapes several years ago when she began digesting family law decisions as part of the "Louisville Law-Wire" and met her face-to-face when her firm's team of bowlers helped raise money as part of the 2006 LBA's Attorney Bowl benefit for Big Brothers Big Sisters.

In addition, Mapes is a contributing editor to her law firm's online Divorce Law Journal which not only posts each published appellate family law decision within days of being announced (with a summary and link to the full text), but also highlights state and national developments in divorce and family law. The Divorce Law Journal has been up and running since February 2006 and can be found at <http://www.divorcelawjournal.com>. You can access the site directly from your web browser, by e-mail updates and by using RSS (really simple syndication) feeds.
